Funding will cover program delivery, including teacher training, travel to participating communities, classroom materials, and staff time needed to implement workshops and support five local teachers who will be trained to deliver Story Works independently. The program provides a structured, culturally responsive storytelling curriculum that builds resilience, promotes emotional regulation, increases school engagement, and strengthens teacher-student relationships. |              |                         |

| Priority 1: Prevention & Early Intervention | This funding will support continued efforts by the Alaska Impact Alliance (AIA) to support families with children in kinship placements through direct support mini grants. Trust funds will provide direct financial stipends to relative caregivers across Alaska through the UReCares Stipend & Respite Program. These direct stipends to kin families work to strengthen protective factors, reduce caregiver stress, increase family stability, and decrease the likelihood that children will enter the formal foster care system. Stipends can help caregivers meet essential needs such as housing, food, transportation, and child related expenses, as well as respite services that provide temporary care so caregivers can attend to health, employment, or personal needs. |              |                         |

| Priority 4: Ongoing Support & Wellbeing     | Trust funds will support the second year of a statewide effort to design and prepare for a self-directed Home and Community-Based Services (HCBS) option in Alaska. Trust funds will support personnel and contractual services to explore how to implement self-directed HCBS. Funding will enable project coordination, stakeholder engagement, technical assistance, and development of the structural components required for a potential Medicaid waiver amendment that would allow participants to direct their own services. The Independent Living Center has experience operating participant-directed models and is well positioned to lead statewide exploration of a self-direction option for Trust beneficiaries who are also Medicaid beneficiaries. |              |                         |

This is the first step in pursuit of becoming a culturally based kinship support model. Grant funds will support contracted evaluation work to document and strengthen the program model and for continued delivery of essential services to families, including navigation support, legal guidance, caregiver education, and cultural activities. This investment allows the program to continue serving kinship families while building the evidence needed to pursue long term funding and improve the quality of services provided. |              |                         |

| Priority 1: Prevention & Early Intervention | Trust funds will support a consultant to conduct a comprehensive evaluation of the Special Education Service Agency’s (SESA) Low Incidence Disabilities Outreach Program, including a program effectiveness review, an economic impact analysis, and multi-stage sustainability planning. The consultant will work with SESA’s Board and administration to assess current service delivery, identify gaps created by rising referrals, and develop long-term operational adjustments that strengthen technical assistance for educators, families, and Trust beneficiaries statewide. The work will directly inform updates to SESA’s business plan and plan of operations. |              |                         |

| Cross-Priority Area                         | Trust funds will support the completion of the update to the Trust Beneficiaries in Alaska’s Department of Corrections (DOC) Study. The project addresses delays experienced under the FY26 funding and will finalize the analysis, reporting, and briefings needed to produce an updated prevalence and needs assessment of beneficiaries within DOC custody. The last time the study was conducted was 2014. |              |                         |
